Healthcare payers understand the need for a comprehensive approach to subrogation. Identifying and analyzing all claims that are the result of another party's negligence and aggressively pursuing recovery is the heart of any great subrogation program.

So why is it that most healthcare payers don't take this same approach when it comes to Mass Tort liability cases? Instead they settle for pennies on a dollar using private lien resolution programs that limit their recovery potential and provide poor results. Why be in a crowded field of plaintiffs fighting for a small piece of a settlement when you can pursue your claim independently, more effectively and with a better result?

We Can Help

Now there is a real alternative to private lien resolution programs that gives you back control and works for your benefit. We take the same approach for Mass Tort cases as we do for all other subrogation cases. We identify and analyze all potential cases and pursue with the intent to recover all the monies due our clients. Conduent has teamed up with Healthcare Recovery Solutions (HRS), experts in Mass Tort identification and litigation to identify all potential claims known to have Mass Tort potential. Using patented data analytics and technology we can now identify all of your potential subrogation opportunities, particularly those difficult and hard to find cases for illness or injury from dangerous pharmaceuticals, defective medical devices or harmful toxic substances.

Our approach supplements your process and does not disrupt the day to day operations of your current subrogation operation. We do not charge a fee to review or analyze claims and we only take a fee for successful recoveries.
